The heavy dynamos for the electric plant weighing over 20 tons each, also several transformers, are stored at the road depot at Ione until such time as the roads are in condition to enable them to be hauled to their destination. A company erected a substantial building over this machinery for the sole purpose of protecting the same from injury by the weather.

E. E. Letang was the first in Jackson to freight to Ranlett station on the Ione and Eastern Railroad. He ordered a car of coal to be forwarded to this point. He is running short of coal, and it is impossible to get teams to haul same to Jackson. From Ranlett there is no doubt he will be able to secure teams.

T. Tadich, who has been employed by the merchandising houses of Jackson for a number of years, left Sunday morning for San Francisco, with the intention of remaining there. He was played at Redlick's store for some time; lately he was salesman at the Ione House, and lately he had been giving orders for M. Ladar.

More Machinery.

The Ledger office has just added some new machinery to its extensive job printing plant. We have now a wire stitching machine, also a round cornering machine, for rounding the corners of books or cards, a punching machine, for making a round hole through pamphlets, cards, programs, etc., and a stabbin machine for book-binding. These machines, with the heretofore large equipment, make the Ledger the most complete job printing establishment in this foothill region.

We are prepared to do every class of commercial, book and poster printing, at rates that cannot be discounted in the cities. We buy our stock in large quantities from eastern manufacturers. We are pleased to state that the Ledger's job business is rapidly increasing, so that we have found it necessary to make these additions to our plant. Business men throughout the county realize that they can depend upon getting work at satisfactory prices by sending their orders to the Ledger.

THE STAPLES MURDER CASE

Dr. F. N. Staples and Mrs. Hoxie reported to be under arrest in Lower California for this crime. Awaiting Extradition Papers from Washington before being turned over to the authorities of this State.

Sheriff Norman informs us that Dr. F. N. Staples and paramour, Mrs. Hoxie, were arrested last week at a small country place about 30 miles from the city of Ensenada in Lower California. The sheriff's office has been in possession of facts leading to the belief that these much-wanted parties were just over the American boundary line in the Mexican territory, for several weeks past. This belief led to the flooding of that section with descriptive circulars of the fugitives, with a picture of each, and offering a reward of $100 for their apprehension. Recently he received letters from that country asking about the reward, and intimating that $100 was not enough for a case of that kind. This and other communications convinced the sheriff that the couple were somewhere in that locality. He communicated with the chief of police of San Diego and soon thereafter secured information that dissipated all doubts about the whereabouts of the pair.

The next thing was to get them in the hands of law officers. This was no easy matter. To authorize their arrest on this foreign soil it was necessary to get a requisition from Governor Pardee, and this authority had to be based on documentary proofs. To secure these the sheriff went to San Francisco and got affidavits from the chemist, Thos. Price, who analyzed the stomach of the deceased, and discovered poison, (arsenic) therein in quantities sufficient to cause death; this was supplemented with other affidavits, and thereupon the governor issued the necessary telegraphic instructions to arrest and hold the accused until their extradition in regular form could be arranged. E. Bailey, U. S. consul at Ensenada, made the arrest, and the pair are now in jail in that city, and will be held there until extradited.

The extradition papers must come from the authorities at Washington. It may take from three weeks to a month before all these negotiations are completed.

What the doctor was doing down there we have not heard. The twin were together; that is about the only thing that is known. The portraits sent out with the descriptive circulars were so life-like that there was no likelihood of mistaken identity.

Monday afternoon Governor Pardee communicated with the sheriff's office, stating that formal extradition papers would not be necessary, as the surrender of the accused parties had been arranged with the governor of Lower California. This would save time and spare delay in extradition formalities between the governments of the two countries. On this information Sheriff Norman left for Lower California Tuesday morning. He first went to Sacramento, to be furnished with the necessary papers from the governor, and thereafter proceed to Ensenada via railroad to San Diego. The distance is over 500 miles. The trip will likely take a week. The sheriff went alone. On the return trip he will perhaps require an assistant, as the prisoners will have to be watched night and day.

One of the important points that led to the location of the fugitives was the receipt of a letter by a party in Amador county from Dr. Staples. The letter was dated on the inside from St. Louis, but bore the postmark of San Diego. The natural inference was that the writer was in the Southern California region.

Dr. Staples was indicted for murder by the grand jury in December for the murder of his wife in Amador City in August last. Mrs. Hoxie was not indicted by that body. A complaint has been sworn to against her for the same crime, and a warrant issued thereon.

This capture is the best piece of work that has been done in the criminal line in this county within our recollection. It is the only instance of persons accused of a capital crime being apprehended after they had succeeded in getting beyond the jurisdiction of the United States. The Hoxie case, some 15 years back—also a wife poisoning case—is the only one that approaches it in the persistence and final success of the efforts to effect a capture. Backsliding, however, never got beyond the jurisdiction of the state. The arrest of Staples and his companion is due to the thoroughness of Sheriff Norman's work in this particular case, which promises to outrank in tragic interest all other murder trials in the criminal annals of this county.

Joint Installation.

The joint installation of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Saturday evening was largely attended and proved very interesting in every particular. D. D. G. M. Warren of Oleta, assisted by J. W. Jones of Ione as grand marshal, installed for the subordinate lodge in a most creditable manner. Mrs. Wesley Amick, assisted by Mrs. Geo. Folger as grand marshal and the drill team, did equally as well for the Rebekahs. An interesting program was rendered at the close, after which all retired to the tastefully decorated banquet hall and partook of a sumptuous repast. The following officers were installed:

ODD FELLOWS.

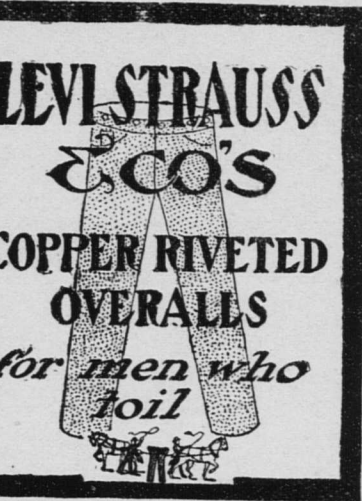

N. G. Max Ladar; V. G. John Moyle; War. W. J. Harvey; John W. Smith; Con. Harvey Clark; Chap. F. W. Morrow; R. S. N. G. Geo. Felmeth; L. S. N. G. Geo. Hambrick; R. S. V. G. Geo. Wishard; L. S. V. G. Henry Wells; Sec. W. E. Kent; O. G. W. J. Nettie; I. G. Ed Guttridge.

REBEKAHS.

N. G. Cynthia Alvis; V. G. Alma Mount; Sec. Ann Clark; Fin. Sec. F. M. Ponce; Treas. Kate Langhorst; Con. Emma Daugherty; War. Ollie Walker; O. G. Geo. Hambrick; I. G. Margaret Alvis; R. S. N. G. Jennie Perry; L. S. N. G. Emma Taylor; R. S. V. G. Mary Trelogan; L. S. V. G. Mary Horr.

It is reported that a committee of the Amador City Miners' Union has notified some of the business men of that town not to sell to employees of the Fremont mine under penalty of being boycotted.

On Wednesday night Excelsior Parlor, N. S. G. W., held a joint initiation meeting. It was arranged that two officers of the Grand Parlor were to be in attendance, and that members from Plymouth were to be initiated. The weather proved very stormy, and interfered with the attendance from the distant parlor. Grand Secretary C. H. Turner of San Francisco was present. Fifteen members, 11 from Jackson and 4 from Sutter Creek, were initiated.

A small blaze was started in the Jackson Shoe Store yesterday. Frank Gurich opened the closet under the stairway and struck a match. The flame of the lighted match came in contact with some cotton batting and started the fire. There was some oil-soaked material near by, and the flames involved these also. It looked serious for a few seconds. Frank kept his presence of mind and succeeded in beating out the flames. The damage was between $15 and $20.

Incorporation Committee.

The committee of citizens appointed a couple of weeks ago to report on the matter of incorporation met last Monday evening. The principal business was to consider the boundary lines of the proposed city of Jackson. A map was present showing what territory it is contemplated to include within the town limits. This map embraces the whole of the townsite of Jackson, and extends to the north to the east line between Jackson Gate and the Onida mine, taking in Gubler's place of business, and the small settlement adjacent thereto. On the south it includes Sutter Creek. On the east it takes in Bright's addition, and on the west a portion of Matley's field and the Anita and Alma mines. Much thought has been given to the question of boundaries, and it is not believed that any serious opposition will develop to the incorporation. When the matter gets further along the Ledger will discuss it from its various viewpoints, and explain as far as we are able to do so the reasons why it is desirable to incorporate now, and we are desirous to do so four years ago. The circumstances have changed, and our views have changed to meet the altered conditions. We may say here that if the conditions were the same today as they were four years ago, the writer would as strenuously oppose the incorporation of Jackson as he did then.

We believe, however, the time has come when it would be to the advantage of the citizens to assume the responsibilities of town government. If party politics are kept out of the movement, incorporation will under present conditions prove a blessing. It should not be more than a few years before paying, or at most a mere token, worthy of being weighed against the benefits that will flow therefrom. The committee is in no hurry in this matter. It is not urgent, and they are resolved to take time enough to do their work thoroughly and in a business-like manner. All of which passages success for the movement.

Central Eureka Wins Out.

Word was received last Tuesday that the long pending suit of the Central Eureka Mining Co. against the East Eureka and James Toman and wife, has been finally decided by the supreme court in favor of the plaintiff corporation. In 1901 the Central Eureka commenced suit in the superior court Amador county to quiet title to certain quartz veins having their apex within the Central Eureka ground, but penetrating in their downward dip or trend to the east the Toman ranch, held under an agricultural patent. The case was tried in October, and November 6 the court gave judgment for the plaintiff, forbidding the defendants or either of them from asserting any rights to the ground in dispute, or interfering in any way with plaintiff in the extraction of ores therefrom. The case was appealed to the state supreme court, and that tribunal has rendered its decision upholding the judgment of the lower court. It is believed that this finally disposes of this long-drawn-out contest.

Railroad Employees Strike.

On Wednesday some 90 employees of the Ione and Eastern railroad went out on strike. Their quitting is said to have been precipitated by the company cutting the wages 25 cents per day. The men repaired to Ione, preliminary to leaving the county. That night a number of them struck the whiskey mills hard. They got into several fights, and the services of constable Kelly were called into requisition to quell the disturbers. He arrested two for disturbing the peace, and they were committed to the county jail for 10 days. One man named J. H. Shaw, who was also having a good time, showed fight when the constable appeared. He slashed at Kelly with a knife, cutting his coat, but doing no bodily harm. He was also brought to Jackson with the other pair. He is charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

IONE-EASTERN RAILROAD

Last Saturday the editor of the Ledger had the pleasure, in company with Wilford Dennis, who is interested in the road, of passing over the new railroad, traveling from Kerr's station, or Ranlett, as the station will be named, to Ione, on the construction train. The train consisted of two flat cars, returning empty to Ione for more material in the shape of ties and track iron. The locomotive was the 65-ton mountain climber just brought out by the company from Ohio. It is built for heavy haulage, and not for speed. The wheels are all geared, for pulling. Its maximum speed is from 17 to 18 miles per hour. It will seldom reach that velocity, 14 miles being about the gait.

Unless one passes over the route it is impossible to get an adequate idea of the amount of labor involved in this undertaking. It is a continual up-hill pull from Ione. For the six miles between Ione and Ranlett there is scarcely a hundred yards of natural grade. Cutting filling and trestle work is the order throughout. The steepest grade is 31 per cent. Curves are numerous, as was unavoidable without enormous expenses in leveling mountain sides. These are all provided with an inside track, so that it is next to impossible to meet with accident in running off the track. The work of completing the line for construction work to Ranlett's was finished last Saturday, and track was laid to a quarter of a mile east of the point where the line crosses the road close to Kerr's station that day. Here a temporary depot will be erected, and freight received to this point on and after February 1.

Between Ranlett and Mountain Springs the road winds around the high bluffs of rock to the north. Here the heaviest grading and highest trestling was encountered. There are two trestles, one about 50 feet high. These trestles are already framed at Ione, and will be put in as soon as track laying reaches them, thereby enabling the construction train to deliver the material. It was estimated that a week or more would be needed to erect these trestles. In front of Mountain Springs much difficulty was encountered from the nature of the soil. Heavy bodies of water had to be controlled, and several thousand dollars had to be expended in drainage to make the road-bed solid for traffic. This trouble has been fully overcome, but it serves to illustrate what unforeseen difficulties are liable to crop up in railroad building. The route had to be changed at this point, after thousands of dollars had been vainly expended in trying to open up the route along the original survey.

In the neighborhood of Cyclone station another large cut and filling occurs. This was more than half completed at the time of our visit, and about a week would see it finished. From thence to Martell's the route is comparatively level, and little work in the way of grading will be necessary.

The company have sent out the following circular:

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26, 1905.

Amador Ledger, Jackson, Cal.

Gentlemen:—We have the honor to inform you that on and after February 1st, 1905, the Ione and Eastern Railroad Company will be prepared to receive and promptly transmit freight of all classes in either direction between Ione and Ranlett stations. Ranlett station is about 6 miles east of Ione. On and after March 10th, 1905, the Ione and Eastern Railroad Company will be prepared to carry both freight and passengers between Ione and Martell station in either direction. Martell station is about 12 miles east from Ione by railroad, and 2 miles from Sutter Creek and Jackson, respectively, by wagon road.

Respectfully yours,

IONE AND EASTERN RAILROAD CO.

Means a Clean Sweep of all Winter Goods

We are naming prices for these goods that will stir the county from end to end. Never in the history of Jackson have such values been placed before the public. Let's start fair, however; don't expect to find everything in the store at reduced prices. You know that our regular prices are always the lowest in town. The things you need that are not on sale will be found here in a better quality and for a less price than anywhere else.

The prices we name on this page are evidence of our determination to make short work of this winter merchandise. Fair warning, however, get here as early as possible. Bargains like these won't linger; it's a clean sweep; the first get the cream

That Ticking in the Throat.	Deer Plentiful.	Olde Tyme Concert.
One minute after taking One Minute Cough Cure that tickling in the throat is gone. It acts in the throat—not the stomach. Harmless—good for children. A. L. Spofford, postmaster at Chester, Mich., says: "Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. Three doses of One Minute Cough Cure half an hour apart speedily cured her. I cannot praise One Minute Cough Cure too much for what it has done in our family." It always gives relief. Sold by all druggists.	The late snow storms in the mountains have driven the deer out of their mountain haunts, and they are now said to be very plentiful in this vicinity. A drove of eight was seen near the Boston mine one day last week, and Sunday last a couple were seen near the Bryant reservoir, only about a quarter of a mile from town. It is terrible provoking on our local nimrods, but they are all good boys and obey the law.—Calaveras Chronicle.	An evening of rare enjoyment is offered to the people of Jackson on Wednesday evening, February 22, by the members of the New Idea Club in the form of an 1830 concert. An excellent musical program is being prepared under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Endicott, and no effort is being spared that will add to the excellence of the program. The entertainment will be concluded with an exhibition of Mrs. Jarley's waxworks, that all may enjoy a laugh to crown the pleasure of the evening. The general admission will be 50c; reserved seats, 75c. Tickets at Boydston's.
John J. Harris was arrested on Thursday of last week by deputy sheriff Gray near the Fremont mine for criminal assault upon a child of tender years. On Saturday following constable T. S. Leake took into custody a man named Thire for a similar offense committed near Amador City. Both men are in county jail awaiting examination.	Sale of Saloon Business. H. D. Calvin has sold to Edward Garbolino his interest in the White Elephant saloon of Amador City. Mr. Garbolino is now sole proprietor. He will collect all bills due the house and pay all outstanding debts.	Nothing will please an invalid as well as a package of those fancy cakes from Nettles' Mkt.

The girl in the hammock laid her book face downward beside her, a faint, skeptical smile visible about her mouth.

"How do you go about it?" was the question that her eyes asked of the radiant landscape. "It's all very well to say that a woman, if she have not a hump upon her back, may marry whom she will, but how would she go about it?"

The scratching of a match broke the summer stillness, and her meditations were suddenly precipitated from the general to the concrete. She glanced where a man's form bulked in one of the huge wicker chairs. With his hand forming a screen he was lighting a fresh cigar, seemingly oblivious to everything in life except that and the Engineering Journal, which lay in his lap.

He was her brother's best friend, and she knew him for years, not with much satisfaction, it must be confessed, since he was notoriously a "man's man," living in a man's world, and regarding the rustle of feminine skirts with something of the same feeling that he did the humming of a mosquito.

But he was good to look upon—so good that a sudden, quick resentment shot through her heart at his indifference. It assumed the likeness of a personal affront, a sort of insult to her sex. It would serve him right if some girl would just make up her mind to marry him and do it, too, before he knew what he was about.

Meanwhile he had tossed away the match and picked up the Journal again as imperturbably as if he were alone, a pair of half-indignant eyes watching him with a combination of pique and amusement.

It certainly would serve him right, her thoughts ran on, if some lady would just wind him round and round her finger, make him fetch and carry at her beck and call, reduce him to a perfect mess of sentiment. Something in her steady gaze caused him to move uneasily, then look up.

"Did you speak?"

He had the perfunctory manner of a person who knows he must keep guard over himself or he will be guilty of some remissness. A heroic resolution to do his duty was visible in his face.

"No," she drawled, "I didn't speak. But if you don't mind very much I think I will. I'd like to ask you, for instance, if you have ever had a ladies' day?"

"A ladies' day?" he repeated helplessly, shaking off his eyeglasses with a characteristic movement, while his tormentor watched him as if he had been some sort of a specimen that she had impaled upon a pin. Then a light dawned upon him.

"You mean such as they have at the clubs—a day when the place is given up to your sex and other matters go to the wall? Well, no. I don't know that I ever have had."

"Don't you think it is time?" she ventured.

"Possibly," he admitted, but he still held the Journal in a way that suggested a well-nigh unconquerable desire to return to it. She stretched out her hand. Reluctantly he handed it over.

"Did it ever occur to you," she asked blandly, "that the creature who tempted Adam so successfully, who is at the bottom of everything, as it were, must be as intricate as your old engineering problems?"

"I have always considered Adam weak—very weak," was his evasive answer. "Men aren't like that nowadays."

At these boastful words a resolution that had been taking form in her mind became full fledged. She was inspired with the sense of a mission. Her neglected sex should find an avenger in her.

"You think you wouldn't have eaten of the apple, then?"

There was a new note in her voice. It was at the same time a challenge and an appeal.

"As if it were something absolutely new to me! I find that girls were delicate, helpless creatures, and a wave of tenderness for the sex swept over him. Still he was very positive that he wouldn't have eaten the apple, and something in the soft, babyish, yet dependent way in which she looked at him caused him to explain at great length why.

"Has talked fifteen minutes by the clock," she was thinking in high glee, but outwardly she was all deferential, honey-sweet attention.

"I'm sure he wouldn't have yielded if he'd been like you!" was her earnest comment when he finished speaking, and at the words he was conscious of a pleasant expansiveness, a caressing sense of satisfaction as delightful as it was unusual. It was as if he were growing taller, broader and more severely strong before her very eyes.

"Go back to your reading. I'm not going to bother you another minute," she jumped up and, laying her hand on his arm, finished ingeniously: "You don't mind my bothering you, do you? A girl gets so tired of woman talk! A girl like this is like a plunge in a cold stream." And she vanished into the house and scurried to her room, where she threw a kiss to her image in the mirror, with the remark, "You're doing well for a beginner, my love."

Down on the broad piazza the man had returned to the closely printed columns before him, but after a half hour he gave up.

"I'm stale!" he murmured, throwing the paper on the table. "Wonder where's she gone? Never before realized how interesting she is—for a girl. Had I ever had a ladies' day? Umph! That was funny!" And he smiled at the recollection of it.

For the next two or three days she avoided him as much as possible.

"I must give him plenty of time," she decided craftily, "and never let him suspect that he's taken the bait."

On the third day he proposed a long tramp to her.

"You don't want a silly thing like me," she protested, with modest self-deprecation. "I can't talk about bridges and buttresses and caissons and all those interesting things that you know about. I shall only bore you."

"What was it you said the other day about the creature that tempted Adam?" was his laughing reply. "Perhaps I want to take up a new line of study."

"I just made him think I was the most dependent thing that ever lived," she confessed shamelessly to her mirror that night. "My timid little feet could scarcely get over the ground without help, and as for climbing fences!"

She went off into a peal of laughter as she remembered how solicitous he had been about her getting over a fence that was in their way—and she who could turn a hand-spring as well as either of her brothers.

"Of course I couldn't do it if I really liked him," she murmured. Then the girl in the mirror averted her face quickly. "I'm just going to give him a much needed lesson, you know," she went on. This time the girl looked into her eyes for a moment. After that she threw herself on the bed and buried a hot face in the pillows.

As the weeks went by the startling conviction that there was one girl in the world who never bored him, never made him long to escape and get back to his own kind, came to be a certainty to the man. With the coming of this knowledge the world seemed a brighter, livelier place.

The idea of marriage, which had hitherto seemed as remote as that of suicide, came and lodged within his brain as if it were an old friend. He thought, with some scorn, of his former views.

They were standing under the big apple tree in the back garden. From the ground she picked up one of the round, smooth apples and began to eat it. Something in the action brought back to him the conversation they once had about Adam, and he wondered how he could ever have been so cross, so dense. He held out his hand.

"Please, Eve," he beseeched.

"But you are not like Adam," she began archly.

"No," he said meaningly. "He waited for temptation. I don't intend to wait."

And that night she whispered to the girl in the mirror, "What Thackeray says is true!"
